Greenblatt teaching award winners announced

Four Montgomery County Public Schools teachers have won awards from the Marian Greenblatt Education Fund. The fund was established in 1988 to commemorate the life of the late Dr. Marian Greenblatt, a teacher and former member of the school board. It is dedicated to recognizing excellence in education.

Three of the winners are finalists for the MCPS Teacher of the Year Award which will be presented as part of the Montgomery County Business Roundtable for education Champions for Children celebration April 27. They are Brian Freiss of Silver Spring, a math teacher at Highland Elementary School in Silver Spring; Peter McAdams of Gaithersburg, an English teacher at Benjamin Banneker Middle School in Silver Spring; and Sharon Moore of Poolesville, a math teacher at Poolesville High School.

Todd Stillman of Rockville, who teaches social studies at Richard Montgomery High School in Rockville, was selected winner of the Greenblatt Rising-Star Excellence in Teaching Award. The award is given to a first or second-year teacher who shows exceptional promise.
